

SILVER IS TALKING

Japan expresses a willingness to talk peace. China has always been ready. The cruel war is practically over.

Occidental nations have been speculating on the trade enlargements which will follow this victorious assault of modern science upon a sordid civilization.

Surely the opportunity is a splendid one. Nothing has occurred in the century to develop at one stroke such an activity in the distribution of products as would be brought about by the entrance of European and American enterprise into the interior of that huge Empire.

Europe understands the opportunity; and the depression of trade has quickened to intensity the desire to get at some great avenue of selling.

But does Europe understand that the Orientals use silver and almost no other metallic money? Have the gold standard nations reflected that to jump into a magnificent trade it is necessary to effect a system of monetary exchange which will suit the habits and resources of China?

Germany, France and England had better be urging that monetary conference and applying all their brains to plans for not only extending the use of silver but for giving it a full money status all over the world.

Without achieving a remonetization of silver, Europe will discover that the selling of goods in China will be slow work. China does not coin silver—her people have not enough faith in the Government or in each other. The Chinese use the metal by weight. But that does not affect the case. An exchange is required which will work without friction and will adjust itself to the money the Chinese have and accustomed to use in their reckoning.

Bimetallism demands attention and Europe will be idiotic unless she gives it anxious study.—St. Louis Republic.

THE NEWS.

On Sunday last a number of people called at the APPEAL office for extra copies of the paper. They said they wanted the full particulars of the Mint shortage, etc.

The APPEAL prints no extra copies and the best way to get APPEAL news is to subscribe regularly. The developments in the Mint scandal will be given to the public as fast as they occur without the slightest fear or favor. The APPEAL will make the fullest possible report of all proceedings and trials in the case.

We have no one to shield either through politics or friends ip, and our motto is that no guilty man should escape punishment who can be proven to have reached for money that does not belong to him. Every one who has stolen from the Government and abused the confidence of his employers, deserves a term in the penitentiary with the accompanying stripes and hard labor, be he Republican, Democrat or Silver man.

John Vance Cheney, a literary dilutant of California, has gone to Chicago the home of Eugene Field and is there delivering lectures on American poets.

Cheney would do well to let Field who is a genuine genius and poet, talk to the people of Chicago about American poets.

Cheney writes lots of colorless meaningless verses for the magazines and he never wrote a line of good original verse in his life. He has neither fire nor originality, but is merely a delicate literary dude with no serious purpose except to write petty little rhymes for the ladies who like to see the names of primroses and daffodils well spoken of by poets.

Field on the other hand lays a master hand on his verse, and whenever you read anything from his pen it is not a lot of moulded over stuff, but is original, robust and beautiful.

Therefore Cheney makes a mistake in posing as a poet in Eugene Field's balliwick.

The San Francisco Chronicle says: The new Silver party will not cut much of a figure in the coming campaign, for the simple reason that the political managers of two national parties are beginning to perceive the hand writing on the wall, and are aware that the free-coinage issue cannot be set aside. Both parties will declare for free-coinage, thus rendering a third party unnecessary.

Both the old parties have been declaring for free coinage for years. Just now when the new party is growing so fast that the old parties are frightened they promise free coinage once more. We don't care a rap now for a free coinage bill passed by either of the old parties. The new party will pass the bill and a free coinage

President will sign it.
